

YOUR MEMBERSHIP MAKES A DIFFERENCE

We rely on the support of people like you so that we can continue to explore our natural world, conduct critical research in biodiversity and environmental science, and connect our community to the most important environmental issues of our time.

Your membership dues help:

- Ensure the conservation of the Academy's unparalleled collections, including treasures such as John James Audubon's birds and Thomas Jefferson's fossil collection.
- Bring the best in authentic science education to more than 75,000 Philadelphia students each year.
- Sustain vital scientific research on environmental and species conservation, public education, discourse about the future of our planet, and much more.

Discover the Natural World

An Academy membership opens the door to some of the most spectacular wonders of the natural world. With a year of free general admission, the museum—and all of its treasures—are yours to enjoy as often as you like.

Explore our Science

As a member, you will experience the Academy's groundbreaking science, extraordinary collections, and interactive educational programming up close. You'll meet some of the nation's top researchers in biodiversity and environmental science and hear from leading experts on topics like paleontology and sustainability. You will explore our impressive behind-the-scenes collections on our annual Members' Night. With an Academy membership, you'll get an inside look at the research, science, and education happening here all year long.
